

Professionalization of the Procurement Function

Malcolm Harrison
Chief Executive, CIPS

Why CIPS?

A professional institute

A membership association

A global network

An awarding body

A training organisation

Working with International Agencies & Funding Organisations

Empowered lives.
Resilient nations.

BILL & MELINDA
GATES foundation

BOMBARDIER
AEROSPACE

UNOPS

THE WORLD BANK

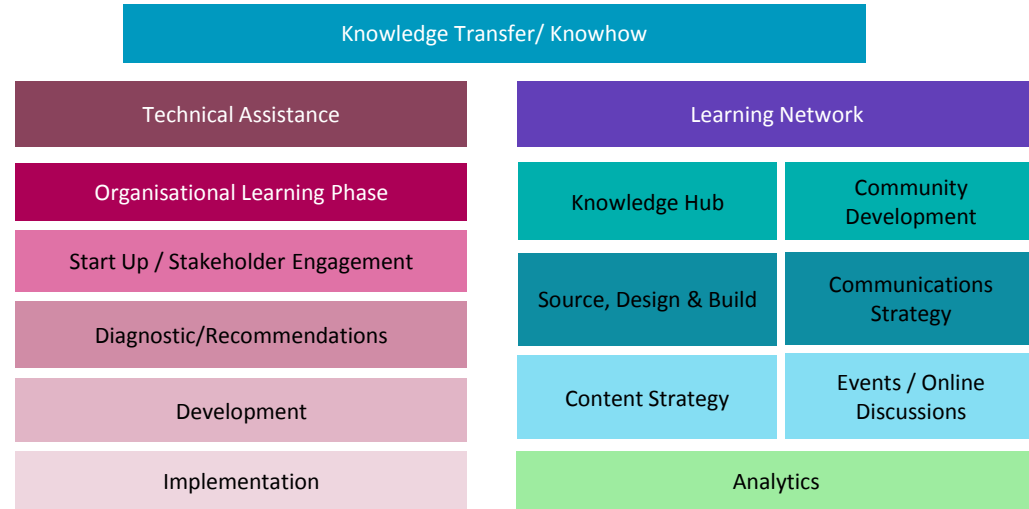

European Bank
for Reconstruction and Development

UNITED NATIONS

Programme Overview

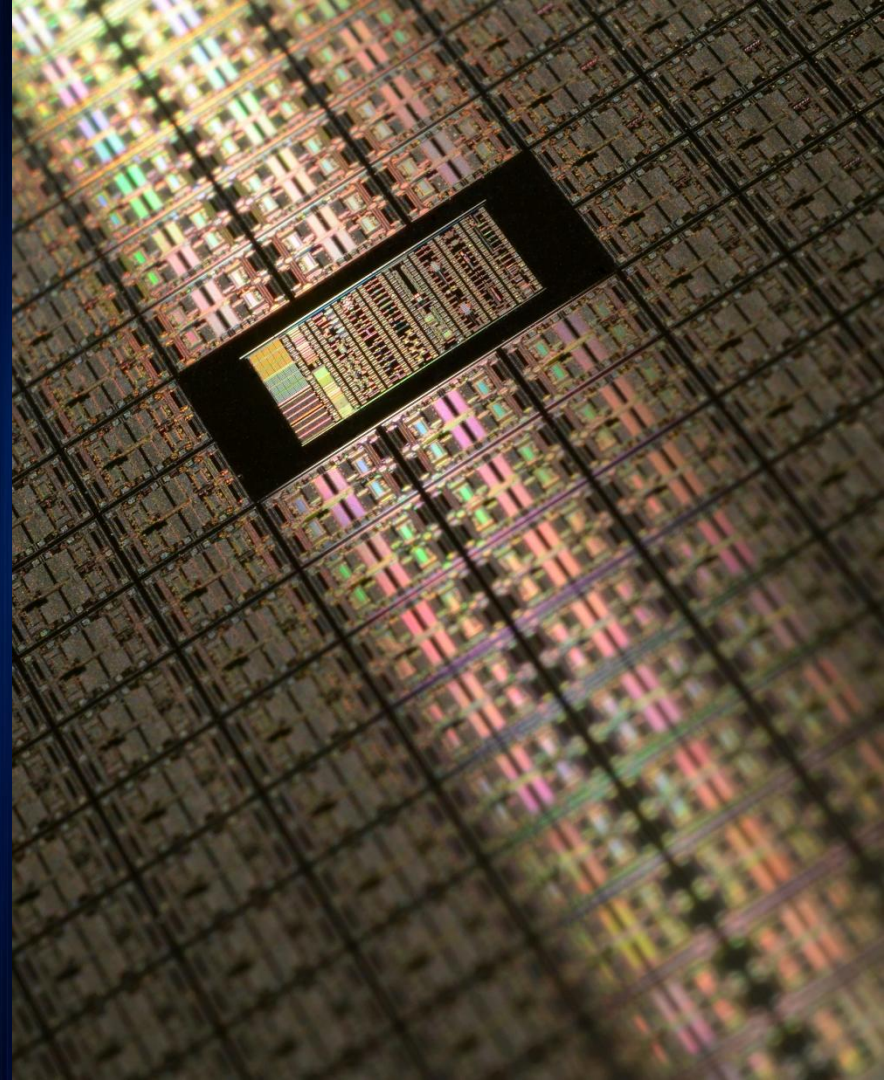

Trends in global supply chains

- Do long lean supply chains work?
- Procure for resilience
- Increased collaboration
- Deeper, empathetic relationships
- Building in more agility
- Driving sustainability

Navigating disruption

- Navigating the impact shipping and logistics
- Managing shortages – microchips, food...
- Learning to live with the pandemic
- Volatile trade relationships

Getting a handle on risk

- Just in time vs Just in case
- Local sourcing and developing markets
- Build back better – boosting local economic growth

Digitally connected profession

- The importance of transparency
- Increasing visibility to manage risks
- Making supply chains more effective and efficient
- Getting a handle on data

Building a brighter future

- Procurement owning the sustainability agenda
- Collaboration is key
- Creating an equal and inclusive profession for all to flourish

Professional partner for life

- CIPS Qualifications
- Chartered Status
- Intelligence Hub
- On-line learning and training
- Ethics learning and test

CIPS
LEARNING
sustain • adapt • grow

Delivered by CIPS Learning:

- rich, engaging educational experiences
- accessible anywhere, anytime
- tailored to your organisational needs
- led by subject matter experts

CIPS LEARNING - FIND OUT MORE

CIPS
LEARNING

Panel D3 To explore how CIPS Learning can work for your organisation, please request a call from a CIPS Business Development Manager

Ethical Procurement and Supply eLearning and Test

CIPS Ethical Procurement and Supply eLearning and Test

Refreshed for 2020

CIPS PROFESSIONAL ETHICS

The Ethical Procurement and Supply eLearning Programme and Test have been refreshed and adapted for 2020. Developed for all levels of procurement professionals, the programme and test enable individuals and organisations to hone their skills and knowledge, and ultimately to demonstrate their commitment to ethical procurement and sustainable supply chains.

Ethical behaviour should be deeply embedded throughout an organisation, with everyone working responsibly together. CIPS e-learning and test helps anyone in the profession to build confidence in employers, suppliers and colleagues.

CIPS Intelligence Hub

The CIPS Intelligence Hub

August | Access the latest research and thinking from CIPS

Web Page
Focus on: CIPS Pays Salary Guide

How the Standard is structured

The Standard is structured into three main parts: Foundation, Intermediate and Advanced. Each part is further divided into Knowledge, Skills and Attitudes.

The diagram shows a hierarchical structure of the CIPS Standard, with boxes for Foundation, Intermediate, and Advanced levels, each containing Knowledge, Skills, and Attitudes components.

The Global Standard for Procurement and Supply

Version 1.0, Published 2017

